(“HAPC”), I-Flow Corporation (“I-Flow”), InfuSystem, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of I-Flow (“InfuSystem”) and Iceland Acquisition Subsidiary, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of HAPC (“Acquisition Subsidiary”) entered into a Stock Purchase Agreement (the “Stock Purchase Agreement”) pursuant to which Acquisition Subsidiary will acquire all of the issued and outstanding capital stock of InfuSystem from I-Flow (the “Acquisition”) and subsequently merge with and into InfuSystem. InfuSystem will be the corporation surviving the merger.

The Acquisition cannot be completed if holders of 20% or more of the shares of HAPC common stock sold in the IPO vote against the Acquisition and, as permitted by the Certificate of Incorporation, demand that their shares be converted into the right to receive a pro rata portion of the net proceeds of the IPO held in a trust account established for this purpose at the time of the IPO.

On August 8, 2007, HAPC filed a definitive proxy statement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) in connection with the Acquisition and required stockholder approval, and commenced mailing the definitive proxy statement to its stockholders. HAPC’s stockholders are urged to read the definitive proxy statement and other relevant materials as they contain important information about the Acquisition. HAPC stockholders may obtain a free copy of such filings at the SEC’s internet site (<http://www.sec.gov>). ## Continuous infusion cancer treatment

- Continuous Infusion (CI) allows for gradual administration of chemotherapy via a small portable pump over several days as opposed to traditional chemotherapy treatments given in a single high dose over a short period of time (known as bolus infusion)
- CI has achieved increased acceptance and is becoming a market standard of care for colorectal cancer (CRC) due to:
  - Increased efficacy and comfort for patients (lower toxicity)
  - Lower cost compared with hospitalization or home care
  - Higher margin to physicians due to changes in Medicare reimbursement
- In 2004, sanofi-aventis and Pfizer introduced CRC treatment protocols FOLFOX and FOLFIRI, which include courses of CI. Their marketing efforts have helped to increase physician awareness of CI.
- There are currently over 120 CI drug therapy clinical trials in progress
- Recent drug protocol approvals for head and neck, lung, pancreatic, gastric and other cancers
